Conference preamble:

The Arab area has always been an arena for burning transformations until the emergence of what was known as the Arab Spring which resulted in massive political changes in the region and gave birth to many migrations, as we saw in Syria, Yemen, and other Arab countries.

During this time and under the tents of refugees, a newly literary phenomenon emerged on the scene known as Refugee Literature; a literature that recorded its forced suffering during the deportation of refugees.

This conference aims to discover the dimensions of refugee literature, which came as an outcome of the aftermath of the Arab Spring, that are unlike those of diaspora and exile literature aiming to understand this concept that is still taking shape in the Arab and international literary and critical arena. It attempts to expose most of the issues produced by this genre, and discover the extent to which its pioneers convey the problems of the new human being.

Conference Problematic:

- _ What is meant by refugee literature?
- _What are the backgrounds and motives that participated in the emergence of (Refugee Literature)?
- _What are the most important issues that formed the dominant themes in Refugee Literature?
- What are the aesthetics of (Refugee Literature) and its artistic formations in its different genres?

Conference themes:

- 1 - Refugee literature: concept and origins.
- 2-Themes of refugee literature (alienation, identity, memory, self and the Other... etc.).
- 3-Aesthetics of refugee literature in its different genres (poetry, novel, story,...)
- 4- Prospects of refugee literature: creativity and readability.
